(Outside/Inside: A Fresh Look at Tzniut) Outside actions create inside awareness; wearing a symbolic and something tangible between us and the Above reinforces that idea that G-d is always watching. Covering the hair was a sign of modesty in society throughout history, but times and definitions of modesty have changed.

Using his own autobiography and data from six in-depth interviews, the author attempted to examine the idea of "men outside, women inside". He wanted to find out why he wants to challenge the traditional gender role and the resistances to change it. This discussion led to a re-examination of social determinism and voluntarism. Berger and Kellner's formula on repression and freedom was ...

Standing on the inside looking out you can never explain it." This has really resonated with me and I carry it with me daily. You truly can't understand someone else's life. It is also extremely hard to explain what your life is like. This is why we need to understand this saying to understand each other. Sometimes as humans we can't see things. We miss things that are right in front ...

Among them were issues between men and women, dress, hair covering, kol isha. These are clear halachot (see any standard work for most, although details differ), but this is what happened. Even such clear biblical matters such as shaving with a razor, and even family purity were neglected at times. This was not only restricted to the Modern Orthodox. Since around the '70's, these matters are ...

Knowing exactly what types of clothing will look best on your frame is key to pulling off a feminine look. Here are a few suggestions: Use caution when wearing strapless or thin-strapped designs. This is because men naturally have broader shoulders than women, and if you want to pull off dressing as a woman seamlessly, opting to show your shoulders is a dead give away that you're a man. If you ...
